

FREVINI STUDIO

Brand Guidelines

The visual system for documents, presentations, posters and collateral. Built from the identity already in place, and written so that anyone can produce work that is unmistakably Frevini.

VERSION 1.1 · SEPTEMBER 2026

Built, not branded.

One dark green does all the work. One editorial serif carries every heading, one contemporary sans carries everything else, and neither is set bold in the standard hierarchy. Pages are square-cornered, left-aligned and built on open field; photography supplies the warmth.

ESTABLISHED

"Built not Branded."

"Where design intent meets technical mastery."

"Better. Bespoke. European Made."

Made in Šiauliai, Lithuania. Studio in Wellington.

Written for specifiers: architects, designers, installers.

OBSERVED

Architectural — hard rectangles, full bleed, no rounded corners.

Restrained — one colour for text, buttons, fields and rules.

Editorial — large serif against small sans, wide margins.

Material — every hero image is grain, bark, leaf or board.

Credible — 15/4 mm, WBP birch ply, FSC, 25-year warranty.

EXTENDED FOR DOCUMENTS

Calm density — about forty percent open field in editorial and presentation layouts; technical pages may be denser.

Serif as signature — Marcellus sets the hierarchy of every document; technical continuation pages may run in DM Sans alone.

One accent per page — green is the accent; photography is the colour.

Logo

Proportions measured from site captures · the official master artwork governs

Clear space = the height of the tail on all sides ($\approx 12\%$ of logo width).

Reversed on Frevini Green or over darkened photography.

Minimum width 28 mm print · 120 px screen

Cover width 42 mm on A4 · 200 px on a slide

Position top-left at the margin; bottom-left on posters

Appears on covers, title and closing slides, posters. Interior pages carry the running footer instead.

Never recoloured, outlined, shadowed, stretched, rotated, watermarked, or shown twice on one face.

Colour

Core carries every document. Utility colours live in tables, charts and icons. Black is an overlay.

BOOK CONSULTATION

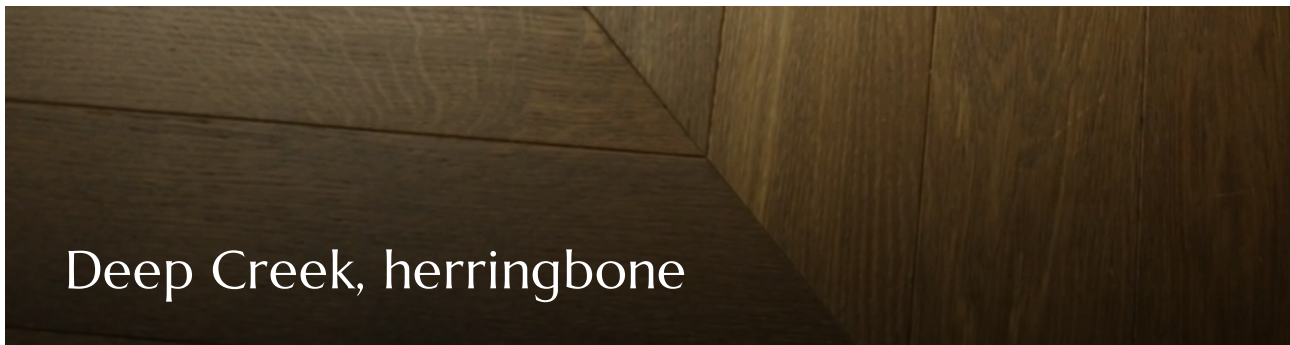

Button, digital only: 48 px, no radius, one per screen.

Icons: 24-unit grid, 1.5 stroke, round joins, no fill. Olive on warm white, green on white, white on green. 12–16 mm. Four per page at most, never as bullets. No other shapes exist.

Material first.

Photography supplies the colour and warmth the palette withholds. Four kinds of image, each with a job to do.

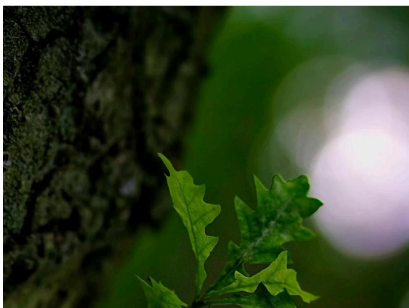

Deep Creek, herringbone

ARCHITECTURE

Oblique floor view, warm directional light. The floor is the subject; furniture gives scale. Covers, openers, full-image pages.

TEXT ON IMAGERY

White Marcellus over a black overlay at 30–45 % or a bottom-up gradient, bottom-left at the margin. Never over faces, grain detail or the horizon.

DETAIL

Grain, bark, leaf, junction. Tight crop, shallow depth, one plane in focus. Text + image pages, quotes, closing pages.

MATERIAL AND PROCESS

Raw material, tactile, documentary. Logs, stacked boards, finishing, samples. Narrative and technical documents.

SAMPLE GRID

The one permitted use of cut-outs on white: swatches on a strict grid, square-cornered, evenly spaced, no shadows.

LIGHT AND COLOUR

- Natural, directional, soft light; late-afternoon warmth is the reference.
- Warm-neutral white balance, restrained saturation. Colour from the subject, not the grade.
- No HDR, filters, vignettes or coloured overlays.

COMPOSITION AND CROP

- Level horizontals; oblique floor views encouraged; one quiet edge for type.
- Square corners; full bleed or on column edges; no bordered insets, no masks.
- One hero image per page; support images at column width; never a collage.

DO NOT USE

- Stock lifestyle photography, or renders posing as photographs.
- Posed people or people looking to camera; people only working with the material.
- Wide-angle or drone distortion, cluttered showrooms, unidentified floors, watermarks.

Images on this page are reference captures from frevini.co.nz. Production work uses the original files at 300 ppi for print and 2x for screen.

Covers, pages, slides, posters.

THREE COVER ARCHETYPES

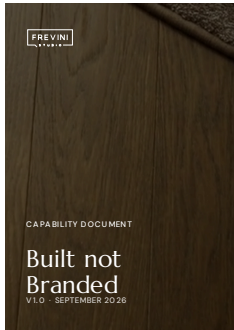

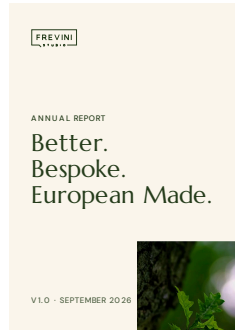

Image-led. Full bleed + overlay, white logo top-left, title block bottom-left. Proposals, capability, lookbooks.

Editorial. Warm white field, title at 40 % height, optional single image lower right. Reports, journals.

INTERNAL PAGES

Section opener. HI at 30 %, one paragraph, one image bleeding off the foot.

Text + image. 5 + 7. Image bleeds to the outer edge; text starts on its top line.

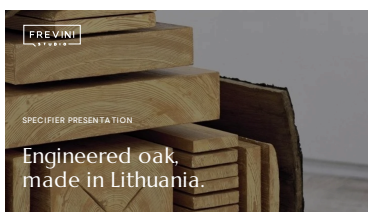

Technical / data. Tables on 8 or 12 columns, horizontal rules only, XL between blocks.

Quote / statement. Warm white, Marcellus in columns 2–10, attribution beneath. Nothing else.

PRESENTATION SLIDES · 16 : 9

Voice

Frevini writes the way it builds: short, exact, unhurried. A three-to-six-word statement, then a sentence of proof.

- 1 Say it short. “Built not Branded.” “Why oak?” Full stops are allowed when the line is a statement.
- 2 Specific beats superlative. 25-year warranty, 15/4 mm, FSC, Šiauliai. Never “premium” or “world-class”.
- 3 Design and technical in one breath. Intent and proof in the same paragraph.
- 4 Assured, not salesy. No exclamation marks, no urgency. “Connect with us to explore how we can support your next project.”
- 5 Plain New Zealand English, European precision. Sentence case, “we”, metric, en-dashes for ranges.
- 6 Address the specifier as a peer. “A collaborative partner for specifiers.”

The Frevini test.

Before anything is issued, answer each question. Any “no” sends it back. Then hide the logo: is it still Frevini?

- 1 Is the typography unmistakably Frevini — Marcellus setting the hierarchy, DM Sans for the rest, Medium for emphasis?
- 2 Is whitespace structural — about forty percent open in editorial and presentation layouts, generous margins and grouping on technical pages?
- 3 Is the palette green, warm white and white — Olive at most once, no other hue outside photography?
- 4 Is every image doing work — material, detail or a finished space — with one hero at most?
- 5 Is the hierarchy immediate: one eyebrow, one heading, one idea, horizontal rules only?
- 6 Have boxes, shadows, gradients, rounded corners and icon-bullets been removed?
- 7 Does every spread pair a statement with a proof?
- 8 Would it look at home beside frevini.co.nz?

DO	DON'T
Marcellus for every heading; DM Sans Regular for sub-heads	Bold sans headings; Times, Cambria or Calibri fallbacks
#253C1B for all text; white and warm white fields	Black text; accent colours; gradients; coloured header bands
Square corners; full-bleed or column-edge images	Rounded cards, drop shadows, bordered insets, collages
Tables with horizontal rules only, units in the value	Office table styles, vertical rules, filled header rows in blue
One text CTA with a 1 pt rule and an arrow	Outlined buttons, multiple CTAs, arrows as bullets
Logo once, top-left, with tail-height clear space	Logo on every page, in the footer, or as a watermark
Short statement, then a sentence of proof	Exclamation marks, superlatives, “click here”
